Read the following passage and mark the letter A, B, C, or D on your answer sheet to indicate the option that best fits each of the numbered blanks.

Why Charity Matters

Charity is more than just giving money—it's about helping others and making a difference in the world. Millions of people (19) _____. Through charity, we can bring hope and change to their lives.

One key aspect of charity is donation. People donate food, clothes, or other items to those in need. For example, food banks collect meals for families (20) _____. Similarly, schools in poor areas receive books and supplies thanks to charitable efforts.

Another important part of charity is volunteering. Volunteers give their time and energy to organize events, raise funds, or provide direct support. They often work in hospitals, orphanages, or shelters, offering care and attention to those who need it most. Without their dedication, many charities would struggle to achieve their goals.

(21) _____. It's a chance to connect with others and gain a deeper understanding of their struggles. Helping someone can bring a sense of pride and happiness, knowing you've made a difference. Furthermore, it teaches values like compassion and teamwork, making us better individuals.

Finally, charity builds stronger communities. When people come together for a cause, (22) _____. Even small actions—like sharing resources or supporting local events—can lead to big changes.

In short, charity is a powerful way to improve the lives of others while also enriching our own. By donating, volunteering, or simply spreading awareness, we can create a brighter future for everyone. (23) _____.

Read the following passage and mark the letter A, B, C, or D on your answer sheet to indicate the correct answer to each of the questions.

[I] Arriving immigrants depended mainly on predecessors from their homeland to help them start a new life.

[II] In the late 19th and early 20th centuries, several European nations instituted public-welfare programs.

[III] But such a movement was slow to take hold in the United States because the rapid pace of industrialization and the ready availability of farmland seemed to confirm the belief that anyone who was willing to work could find a job. [IV]

Most of the programs started during the Depression era were temporary relief measures, but one of the programs Social Security - has become an American institution. Paid for by deductions from the pay checks of working people, Social Security ensures that retired persons receive a modest monthly income and also provides unemployment insurance, disability insurance, and other assistance to those who need it. Social Security payments to retired persons can start at age 62, but many wait until age 65, when the payments are slightly higher. Recently, there has been concern that the Social Security fund may not have enough money to fulfil its obligations in the 21st century, when the population of elderly Americans is expected to increase dramatically. Policy makers have proposed various ways to make up the anticipated deficit, but a long-term solution is still being debated.

In the years since Roosevelt, other American presidents have established assistance programs. These include Medicaid and Medicare; food stamps, certificates that people can use to purchase food; and public housing which is built at federal expense and made available to persons on low incomes.

Needy Americans can also turn to sources other than the government for help. A broad spectrum of private charities and voluntary organizations is available. Volunteerism is on the rise in the United States, especially among retired persons. It is estimated that almost 50 percent of Americans over age 18 do volunteer work, and nearly 75 percent of U.S. households contribute money to charity.

Read the following passage and mark the letter A, B, C, or D on your answer sheet to indicate the correct answer to each of the questions.

Do you feel like your teenager is spending most of the day glued to a phone screen? You're not too far off. A new survey from the Pew Research Center reveals the surprising ways that technology intersects with teen friendships — and the results show that 57 percent of teens have made at least one new friend online. Even more surprisingly, only 20 percent of those digital friends ever meet in person.

[I] While teens do connect with their friends face-to-face outside of school, they spend 55 percent of their day texting with friends, and only 25 percent of teens are spending actual time with their friends on a daily basis (outside of school hallways). [II] These new forms of communication are key in maintaining friendships day-to-day — 27 percent of teens instant message their friends every day, 23 percent connect through social media every day, and 7 percent even video chat daily. [III] Text messaging remains the main form of communication — almost half of survey respondents say it's their chosen method of communication with their closest friend. [IV]

While girls are more likely to text with their close friends, boys are meeting new friends (and maintaining friendships) in the gaming world-89 percent play with friends they know, and 54 percent play with online-only friends. Whether they're close with their teammates or not, online gamers say that playing makes them feel "more connected" to friends they know, or gamers they've never met.

When making new friends, social media has also become a major part of the teenage identity- 62 percent of teens are quick to share their social media usernames when connecting with a new friend (although 80 percent still consider their phone number the best method of contact). Despite the negative consequences-21 percent of teenage users feel worse about their lives because of posts they see on social media — teens also have found support and connection through various platforms. In fact, 68 percent of teens received support during a challenging time in their lives via social media platforms.

Just as technology has become a gateway for new friendships, or a channel to stay connected with current friends, it can also make a friendship breakup more public. The study reveals that girls are more likely to block or unfriend former allies, and 68 percent of all teenage users report experiencing "drama among their friends on social media."

Over the past few decades, the term 'Hallyu', which translates to "Korean Wave", has made its way to the global stage. The rapid growth of the Hallyu market owes its success to meticulously crafted domestic cultural strategies and unwavering government support. Following the Asian financial crisis in 1997, President Kim Dae-jung envisioned a national cultural strategy to revive the economy. Since then, South Korea's cultural industry has been on an upward tendency.

Amongst the latest ranking of most-subscribed-to YouTube accounts, BLACKPINK secures the global top spot of artists, followed by BTS in second place and Justin Bieber in third place. The exportation of cultural industries vividly showcases the escalating influence of Hallyu, now a trump card for South Korea in improving its soft power.

BLACKPINK's recent presence at Buckingham Palace is not the first time South Korean idol groups have stepped onto the diplomatic stage. Thanks to the huge fan base and influence of these groups, they have become a common sight before foreign affairs visits and leader summits. Back in May 2022, BTS held an audience with US President Joe Biden at the White House, discussing matters concerning anti-Asian hate and racial discrimination.

According to the '2021 National Image Survey' by the South Korean Ministry of Culture, Sports, and Tourism, a striking 80.5% of foreigners positively evaluated South Korea's national image. Undoubtedly, the Hallyu wave molds South Korea's national image on their political and cultural fronts.

Read the following passage. Mark the letter A, B, C or D on your answer sheet to indicate the correct answer to each of the questions

Climate change refers to the long-term alteration of temperature and typical weather patterns in a place. This phenomenon is largely driven by human activities, particularly the burning of fossil fuels such as coal, oil, and gas, which increase the concentration of greenhouse gases in the atmosphere. They trap heat from the sun, leading to global warming and causing severe weather events, such as hurricanes, floods, and droughts, to become more frequent and intense. Climate change impacts nearly every region of the world and affects the natural environment, economies, and human health.

As temperatures rise, polar ice caps and glaciers are melting at alarming rates, contributing to rising sea levels. Coastal regions face an increased risk of flooding, and many low-lying islands are at risk of disappearing entirely. Additionally, higher temperatures lead to the warming of oceans, affecting marine ecosystems and causing coral bleaching, which threatens biodiversity and the livelihoods of millions of people who depend on fishing.

[I] The consequences of climate change are not just environmental; they also affect human society in significant ways. [II] Changes in weather patterns disrupt agriculture, leading to crop failures and food shortages in vulnerable regions. [III] Furthermore, climate change is linked to health issues such as respiratory diseases, heat strokes, and the spread of diseases carried by insects, like malaria and dengue fever. [IV]

To combat climate change, a coordinated global effort is necessary. Governments, organizations, and individuals all have roles to play in reducing greenhouse gas emissions and promoting sustainable practices. Shifting to renewable energy sources, such as wind, solar, and hydropower, is essential. Additionally, conserving forests and investing in technology that captures carbon dioxide from the atmosphere can help mitigate the effects of climate change and pave the way for a healthier planet.

Question 24: Where in paragraph 3 does the following sentence best fit?

"These impacts have far-reaching consequences that extend beyond environmental damage."

- A. [I]
- B. [II]
- C. [III]
- D. [IV]

Question 25: The phrase "pave the way for" in paragraph 4 could best be replaced by _____.

- A. stand in the way of
- B. block progress to
- C. prepare a path toward
- D. add complexity to Question 26: The word "They" in paragraph 1 refers to _____.

- A. severe weather events
- B. greenhouse gases
- C. fossil fuels
- D. human activities

Question 27: Which of the following is NOT mentioned as an effect of climate change in the passage?

- A. An increase in the frequency of extreme weather events
- B. Sea-level rise significantly impacting coastal communities
- C. Health issues related to rising temperatures
- D. The disappearance of various animal species due to climate change

Question 28: Which of the following best summarizes paragraph 4?

- A. Only by transitioning to renewable energy sources can we successfully combat climate change, without relying on the efforts of individuals or governments.
- B. Climate change is largely driven by natural processes, implying that addressing this issue is a global responsibility rather than one for individuals or governments.
- C. Successfully addressing climate change requires personal responsibility, community action, and government regulations focused on reducing greenhouse gas emissions.
- D. The fight against climate change heavily depends on government actions, while public involvement and individual changes play a minimal role.

Most of the world's energy comes from burning fossil fuels which can be found in various forms. For example, coal may be burned in a power plant to generate (29. ELECTRIC) _____, but gasoline is burned in a car's engine to make it run. Neither of these two sources is considered green energy because they produce a lot of (30. POLLUTED) _____ when they are burned. In addition, they come from a source that is inevitably going to run out.

Green energy can be defined as any energy source that is to some degree non-polluting. When it is called sustainable, this means that a person can replace the same amount of energy that was (31. CONSUMPTION) _____ by that person within that person's lifetime. Since it took millions and millions of years to create the fossil fuels that we now burn, we know that they cannot be replaced by us. Wind power and solar power, when harnessed (32. PROPER) _____, are two excellent sources of green energy. Once the (33. NECESSITY) _____ parts such as wind turbines to generate wind power and solar panels to create solar power have been produced, only the pollution from the production is left.
